

I am writing to express my support of the Wisconsin "no call" list. Frankly I view it as an invasion of my privacy and a form of harassment for telemarketers to call me at home, interrupting activities I am involved in. Telemarketeers are often rude and pushy an abuse I do not want to endure. Warren and Brandeis states, and I concur, "That the individual shall have full protection in person and in property is a principle as old as the common law; but it has been found necessary from time to time to define anew the exact nature and extent of such protection. Political, social, and economic changes entail the recognition of new rights, and the common law, in its eternal youth, grows to meet the new demands of society. Thus, in very early times, the law gave a remedy only for physical interference with life and property, for trespasses vi et armis.... Later, there came a recognition of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and his intellect. Gradually the scope of these legal rights broadened;

and now the right to life has come to mean the right to enjoy life, -- the right to be let alone..."

Please consider the above before you allow industry to abuse the citizens of Wisconsin.
